We invite applications for a Lecturer / Senior Lecturer in Equine Medicine (clinical educator track) in the RCVS accredited Equine Referral Hospital at the Hawkshead Campus at the Royal Veterinary College.

You will work in the transdisciplinary RVC Equine team and play an important role in delivery of outstanding clinical services to referring veterinarians and horse owners, undergraduate and postgraduate teaching, including project supervision; mentoring; and clinical research. You will show leadership in the development and delivery of equine medical services, including hospital-based and peripatetic delivery. You will be expected to demonstrate innovation and develop a new case load in your area of expertise. An ability to build on existing areas of RVC Equine medical expertise, including neurology, would be an advantage. Teaching innovation and delivery of an excellent student experience is essential. You will be engaged with clinical governance programmes and play an active part in ensuring the highest standards of clinical practice are followed in the hospital. You will have active involvement with clinical research, either working collaboratively or developing your own clinical research programmes.

Applicants will have a veterinary degree registrable with the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons and hold the diploma of either the ECEIM or the ACVIM.

Applicants are encouraged to contact Professor Josh Slater on +44 1707 666859 or email jslater@rvc.ac.uk
